

A LIVE-WIRE NEWSPAPER --- WITHOUT DOUBT THE BRIGHTEST AND BEST APPEARING COUNTRY WEEKLY PUBLISHED IN THE DOMINION OF CANADA

LEGISLATIVE
TO DATE

Interest in the legislature the past week centred in the discussion on the natural resources question, and the announcement that the budget and the liquor act amendments will be introduced during the coming week. Premier Greenfield on Tuesday informed the house of the offer on the transfer of the natural resources received from Premier McKenzie King, and stated that the Alberta government was prepared to negotiate immediately for the return of the resources. He asked for a free hand for the government in carrying on these negotiations, and Leader Boyle of the opposition agreed that the government should have a free hand. The premier stated that he entirely agreed with the suggestion of Premier King that past negotiations should be ignored and a fresh start made.

Premier Greenfield is introducing his budget this week, and Attorney-General Brownlee will also have his liquor amendments down. He has already given notice of a bill to license restaurants and export houses.

The bills respecting supply of seed and relief to the farmers were passed during the week. Amendments were made in committee providing that the maximum advance of seed grain for any one quarter section shall be $130 instead of $100, and not over $250, to any person in any one year, and that the maximum of all loans made to any farmer shall not exceed $1030.

During the week amendments to the general irrigation act were passed which will make it possible for the irrigation districts to carry on their own colonization schemes. In this connection Premier Greenfield announced the policy of the government to be that colonization should keep pace with development of these irrigation projects.

The bill giving guarantee to the bonds of the South Macleod irrigation project was passed by the house during the week. The total guarantee on this project is $2,050,000.

Four bills to incorporate German Hutterite land holding associations were thrown out by the house.

A new tax recovery act has been introduced by Hon. Mr. Reid that will provide new procedure with respect to sale of lands for taxes. Instead of sale by auction of such lands the year after taxes are due, the municipality will simply file a caveat against the land. A year later the municipality will apply for title, if taxes are still in arrears, and in the year following that, the land must be offered for sale by auction. This will give approximately two years for the owner to redeem by paying off all taxes due.

Acts passed during the week include those made necessary by the transfer of the irrigation and drainage branches from the department of public works to the control of the minister of railways and telephones. The amendments to the mines act were also passed, providing for a pay day every alternate Saturday, and for certain requirements with respect to qualifications of mine managers. The amendments to the agricultural societies ordinance, and the bill to provide for the revision of the statutes, were also passed.

Amendments to the stock inspection act provide for elimination of stock inspectors at country points, and the establishment of inspectors at Moose Jaw and Winnipeg who will inspect all Alberta stock at these points.

Amendments to the game act have passed through committee. It has been decided to permit the use of the pump gun in the province, and also to allow the seasons for chicken and Hungarian partridge to stand as at present. The amendments provide that trappers must have a resident trapper's license, save in trapping on their own land. They also provide that no person shall at any time carry a loaded shot gun or discharge the same from any vehicle.

Amendments to the women's institutes act will put the operation of those institutes under a provincial advisory board. In the place of the superintendent of women's institutes, provision is made for appointment of a "superintendent of women's societies." The bill seeks to put all women's organizations on the same footing.

Amendments to the prairie fires ordinance provide further measures for the prevention of prairie fires and for combating these fires.

Other acts introduced include one providing for appointment of an extra supreme court judge. This is to provide against a need which may arise in connection with the bankruptcy court, and the act can only be brought into effect on proclamation of the government. These are acts to amend the wild lands tax act, to amend the school ordinance, the town act, the village act, the educational tax act, the motor vehicle act, and the public service act.

Announcement has been made by Hon. Perren Baker, minister of education, that there will be a joint conference of school trustees association and teachers' alliance committees to negotiate a new teachers' contract form.

John R. Cowell, the veteran clerk of the legislature, celebrated his 73rd birthday on Monday last. Mr. Cowell has been clerk of the Alberta legislature since the election of the first legislature 16 years ago.

Among returns made to the house the past week in response to questions was one in reply to F. White, of Calgary, as to the amount of money spent for relief work. This showed that $544,500 had been authorized for distribution of relief and $640,500 for relief work. Of these amounts $536,435 had been spent since August 16th last. Grants made to cities and towns totalled $31,955, and advance made by the department of agriculture for relief totalled $118,528. In addition to this many public buildings were under way providing work for unemployed.

In reply to A. R. McLennan, Edmonton, it was stated that $186,244 had been spent by the government on relief since November 1, and of this $2,136 had been spent on farmers living north of Red Deer. Cities had drawn $55, Calgary, $8,789, Lethbridge, $4, amounts as follows: Edmonton, $17,662, Medicine Hat, $816, Red Deer and Wetaskiwin nothing.

E. R. Marshall, Calgary, drew the information that 2311 permanent employees were employed by the government when the present government took office and that 2,197 were employed now.

Hon. C. R. Mitchell secured a return showing that a total of $4,155,524 remained outstanding and uncollected by the various departments at the end of 1921. In addition to this $1,099,469 had been collected and not yet turned over to the general revenue.

In answer to T. C. Milnes, Claresholm, the house was informed that $49,544.31 had been paid in bonuses to civil service employees during the last full bonus period, which is three months, since the bonuses are paid quarterly.

On Friday Hon. Alex. Ross gave notice of a bill to provide for a superannuation fund for civil servants.

COLLECTING IS
HARD TIMES

Money is tight—apropos of the tightness of money it might be said that most people are letting loose of it under protest—verbal or otherwise—which brings to mind a true story: A local man owed a small debt to another local man and persistently refused to pay. The creditor placed the debt in a solicitor's hands for collection with the result that it was paid—but the one-time debtor met the creditor in a local bank a few days later and with much profanity and abuse stated his opinion of drastic collection methods and wound up by terming the creditor an Ananias and upon the creditor replying "The same to you and many of them," the irate debtor appeared to become suddenly speechless (perhaps not for the first time in his career) and doubtless feeling the futility of language (and remembering the old saw regarding the acoustic properties of action as compared to words) promptly slammed the creditor in the eye, abruptly terminating the argument. Such methods of remonstrance might be termed crude, but in case (as assumed) the aggressor lacked fluency of vocabulary, perhaps he should not be too harshly judged by higher intelligence for reversion to brute force—the natural medium of expression among the ignorant and illiterate. Moral—"Trust God"—in other cases demand cash.

The creditor stood on the dizzy deck—The debtor was rampartous. He hit the creditor in the neck—His conduct quite outrageous; Now the creditor stands aghast, His neck behind the mast—He will not move an inch till the debt or will have passed.

A substantial prize is offered for the best limerick suggested by the episode above recounted.

CAPITAL GOSSIP AND PROVINCIAL NEWS

The Department of Agriculture has arranged for a short course in agriculture to be held at Red Deer on March 28, 29 and 30. Lecturers from the Department and the University will handle the various subjects, which include beef and dairy cattle, hogs, sheep, draft horses, selection of seed and fodder crops.

A delegation of sheepmen interviewed Hon. Mr. Hoadley, Minister of Agriculture, the past week, and obtained assurance that the amendments recently made to The Domestic Animals Act made no change in the conditions with respect to ranging of sheep as they existed in previous years. The act was put in force in 1920, and Mr. Hoadley stated that it left no option for him but to enforce its provisions. The delegation at the conclusion of the interview expressed themselves as satisfied that the government was prepared to give the sheep industry a square deal.

Effective from March 4, the E.D. & B.C. Railway has put into effect a through tariff on livestock from all points on that line to Calgary and to Winnipeg, which will provide for a reduction of 2 cents per 100 lbs.

An aggregate attendance of 13,329, with an average attendance of 493, was recorded at the lectures held on the mixed farming special train which recently completed a tour of a large part of the province on C.P.R. lines. A record of the attendance was kept by H. S. Pearson of the Provincial Dairy Branch. The attendance at the various points was as follows:

Acme 510, Okotoks 420, Nanton 225, Blackie 350, Stettler 705, Coronation 750, Strome 600, Hardisty 450, Provost 650, Westlock 650, Falher 550, Sexsmith 490, Donnelly 325, Berwyn 700, Irricana 150, High River 225, Vulcan 225, Alix 570, Castor 950, Camrose 850, Sedgewick 400, Czar 450, Bushy 450, High Prairie 228, Spirit River 355, Grande Prairie 755, Peace River 300.

Irrigation districts in Southern Alberta either operating under construction, or in process of organization are under control of the Irrigation Council to the extent of 722,086 acres according to the annual report of the council tabled in the Legislature Wednesday afternoon by Hon. V. W. Smith. This does not include the William Pearce project which is under consideration and on which surveys are now being made by the Department of Interior, Ottawa.

The report is the first annual one of the council and is signed by L. C. Charlesworth, chairman, and C. N. Houston, secretary. It is a fairly lengthy report, dealing principally with the construction of the Lethbridge Northern and the consideration of proposed new schemes.

The projects outlined in the report are: Taber, 17,000 acres operating; Lethbridge Northern, 105,000 acres under construction; United, 23,000 acres under construction; South Macleod, 61,000 organizing; Medicine Hat Southern, 5,300, organizing; Medicine Hat Eastern, 5,000, organizing; Lethbridge Southeast 350,000; Little Bow, 2,780 organizing; Retlaw-Lomond 100,000; Champion 50,000; New West 3,000; William Pearce; Eyremore.

Taber district is reported to be in good condition. The average holding of land, irrigable, is 170 acres. The Lethbridge Northern construction so far has resulted in 10 contracts being awarded for various parts of the work. Two large contracts are yet to be awarded, one for masonry structure on the branch canals and one for timber structures on the system.

The trustees of the district draw monthly by requisition approved by the irrigation council, on the bond trust account standing in the name of the Provincial Treasurer at Edmonton. On December 31, there had been drawn from this account $1,672,761. Receipts including proceeds of bonds and interest earned were $4,208,085.03, leaving a credit balance to the district's account of $2,535,323.66.

Studies of other irrigation projects are now going on says the report, which in connection with the Lethbridge southeastern details and developments which have taken place in the past year with regard to the division of the international waters. The report of the drainage council was also laid on the table. This detailed the advancement in some four drainage districts, including Holden No. 1, for which there was a $200,000 debenture issue, Viking No. 6, $641,000 debenture issue, Dayland No. 4, $300,000 debenture issue and Dickson No. 7, $46,000 debenture issue. In the Holden district the works were practically completed last September and it is expected to finish Dickson this year. In Viking the work was practically completed some time since and it is expected to finish Dayland works during the present year.

Revision of the course of studies in the Alberta Public Schools, which has been undertaken during the past year by a committee of prominent citizens named over a year ago, is now practically completed, and the committee has made its general recommendations to the Minister of Education Hon. Perren Baker. The result of the recommendations, if adopted, will be a course of studies for the public schools greatly simplified, made less burdensome as to number of subjects and amount of material handled, and made more practical for every-day use. In other words, the emphasis will now be laid upon the fundamentals with the frills relegated to their proper place.

The general recommendations of the committee are as follows:

Subjects of study to be divided into two groups, Fundamental and Secondary. Fundamental subjects to form the basis of promotion, and to receive from 75 to 80 per cent. of the school time.

Fundamental subjects to be Arithmetic, English (reading, literature, composition, spelling and grammar in the later grades) Writing, Elementary Science (nature study, agriculture, geography) History in the later grades.

Secondary subjects to include Physical Education and Industrial Education (art, manual arts, household economics).

English, oral and written to be the basis of study in elementary schools, and no less than 50 per cent. of the school time to be devoted to it.

All old subjects to be retained, but combined to prevent loss of time, and obsolete matter to be eliminated.

Course in "Citizenship" to be introduced, in which stress may be laid on principles of morality, citizenship and manners.

In the last years of the elementary school, a certain amount of optional material to be provided.

The aims of the committee in simplifying the course of studies is illustrated by its handling of several subjects. The teaching of English in its various branches is to have 50 per cent. of the school time, certain definite standards are to be set, and home work to be limited. In reading, there will be three phases, silent, oral and reading as a social exercise. In spelling the list of words taught will be limited to 1500 every-day words, with supplementary lists of words' needed in special situations.

The revision of the high school curriculum is also being undertaken. The committee is assisted by a committee of professional people and a group of authors selected to handle each subject of study.

The importance of solving the problem of keeping the rural schools of the province open the year round, and the need of filling the demand for capable teachers are two problems emphasized in the report of the Department of Education for 1921, submitted to the Legislature last week by Perren Baker, Minister of Education. These two problems are referred to by John T. Ross, Deputy Minister.

The entire report, however, sounds an encouraging note for the future of education in the province. G. Fred McNally, Supervisor of Schools, forecasts that by September of 1922, the supply of teachers will have reached the demand. He comments on the great increase in normal students saying there will be 530 new teachers ready for duty early in 1922.

Another feature of the report is the comment on the great increase in high school attendance, and the increase in the number of rural schools handling high school work. The two new rural high schools at Fleet and Irma have done excellent work during the year. Total enrolment in the Alberta schools for the first term of 1921 was 124,328, compared with 135,750 in 1920. The reduction is accounted for by the fact that the statistical year has now been made to conform with the school year, and the figures for 1921 include only those for the first part of the year.

Enrolment in graded schools was 67,567, and in ungraded schools 56,361. Total school districts operating was 3301, compared with only 742 in 1905. It is shown that 2.33 per cent. of the total enrolment left school at the age of 15 last year, but 40 per cent. of these had grade eight or better standing. Schools in operation totalled 2743, consolidated schools 68. There were 86 districts created during the year. The attendance at the normal schools was 892. Statistics show that there are still very many boys and girls over-age attending schools, this reflecting to a certain extent conditions in the rural districts where schools do not always remain open the year round, and where pupils often go to school for only a month or two in the year. For instance there were 1483 boys and 1155 girls of nine years of age enrolled in grade one during the first term of last year.

Encouraging reports are given by the inspectors of high schools, the supervisor of consolidated schools and the supervisor of "New Canadian" schools. The report of the registrar shows an increase of about 1000 in those writing on grade VIII examinations. The school libraries branch during the year distributed 51,170 volumes, covering 2371 school districts.

better crop weather conditions as a result of the numerous severe storms in March than I predicted some time ago and that the general crops of North America will be better than I indicated in some of my newspaper bulletins. I now expect that about one-third of the continent will get below normal crops and two-thirds will get bumper crops. Altogether the best average of crops is expected for North America that will have been produced for many years.

It would seem from conversations held with farmer friends of late, that many men are very seriously considering whether it would be wise to go to the trouble and expense of putting in a crop this year, having about come to the conclusion that we are in for another bad year. This would be downright foolishness. For the past two or three seasons, it is true, farming has been more or less of a gamble, but times and seasons are bound to change. We must look for the best and do our best. Without hope what have we? We have harvested dandy crops in this part in the years that have gone by, many farmers having become rich in one or more seasons. If this were not so how could we have "hung on" as we have done of late? The land has got to be cultivated in any case, and it is expected that those who are at present looking on things through blue-ruin glasses will take a more optimistic view here long and may even be the first to get on the land as soon as conditions will permit, and eventually sowing, if not the usual acreage, at least enough land so that they will be assured of some return for their labor. It is not well to take things too seriously.

One of the finest and most laughable comedies ever produced in Macleod was "Nothing But the Truth," a comedy in three acts, which was played at the Empress Theatre, Macleod, by the Macleod Players to a capacity house. The Macleod Players are composed of entirely local talent, although it is only fair to say that several of the company have had stage experience. The comedy was the funniest ever seen at Macleod and from the time the curtain went up until it came down on the final act the huge audience was kept in roars of laughter. "Nothing but the Truth" is one of the latest comedies and this is the first time it has been produced this far west. The synopsis of the play is: Robert Bennett, a young stock broker, makes a bet of ten thousand dollars that he can speak the truth for 24 hours, which said bet is taken up by two of his partners and another broker by the name of Van Dusen. The play then runs along merrily, showing the terrible predicaments one can get into by trying to tell the truth, and he eventually wins, although he swears never to try and tell the truth again.

Mr. T. W. Whitefoot took the leading part of Bob Bennett, the young stockbroker, which part was well portrayed and acted. He was assisted in this difficult role by Miss Margaret Watson in the part of Gwen Ralston Bennett's fiancée. Miss Watson thoroughly deserved the very generous applause she received as her acting was splendid. Mr. E. M. Ralston, the wealthy stock-broker, was played by Mr. R. F. Barnes, who is well known to Southern Alberta audiences. Mr. Barnes' portrayal of this character was exceedingly well done in his usual clever and inimitable manner. The difficult role of Bishop Doran was taken by Mr. Charles K. Underwood. His acting was splendid and caused roars of laughter when he was extracting money from the close Van Dusen, the supposedly smart stockbroker, which latter part was cleverly handled by Mr. Howard Townsend.

Mr. R. Hamilton, taking the part of Dick Donnelly, was very good, as were also Miss Macduff as Ethel Clarke and Miss Nellie Watson as Miss Sable Jackson. The difficult part of Mrs. Ralston was excellently portrayed by Miss Marie Root, while the part of Mabel Jackson, the Flapper, was taken by Mr. Whitehead. In this female impersonation Mr. Whitehead showed considerable skill, and his acting and skittish mannerisms caused many hearty laughs. Mr. Geo. Scoull as Beckitt the Butler, took his part in great style.

The show was put over with a great swing and is easily one of the best and funniest comedies seen in the west. The Macleod Times takes this opportunity of congratulating the Macleod Players on their presentation of the comedy at the same time apologizing for inadvertently omitting the report of the play from last week's issue. We are also glad to note that the talents of these local players have been recognized by outside towns as we understand they have been requested to present the play at High River, Claresholm, Pincher Creek and Blairmore.

FAIRBANKS' LATEST PICTURE HIS BEST

Critics and Public Wonderfully Enthusiastic Over "The Mark of Zorro"

Never before has Douglas Fairbanks waxed so enthusiastic over the success and admiration of a picture than he has over "The Mark of Zorro," his fourth United Artists production which will be the feature attraction at the Empress Theatre Wednesday and Thursday next.

The story is an adaptation of Johnston McCully's novel, "The Curse of Capistrano," which appeared in the "All Story Weekly" magazine.

Those critics who have viewed "The Mark of Zorro" have proclaimed that Fairbanks has excelled any of his previous performances. This is due to some extent to the ingenious story and the opportunities afforded "Doug" to make the greatest use of his athletic ability.

The background of the story is centered around early Southern California of nearly a century ago when its destinies were zealously guarded by the Spanish settlers. History records the occasions when the Spanish emigrated to the southwest of North America in a climate somewhat similar to that of their native country. They brought with them not only their customs and art but always manifested an alluring spirit of romanticism, chivalry and glamour that has never yet failed to make a strong appeal to even those of another race. We have always known them to be a rollicking type, ever fond of their wines, their native dances and music, and strongly imbued with a love and adoration for those whose lot it fell to perform valiant deeds. Extreme courtesy under all circumstances was a virtue endeared to the hearts of all; hence their intense love for the chivalrous. As years passed, their posterity perpetuated their mode of life and though conditions may change, their history will never remain extinct.

Now in order to depict scenes that truly resembled life as it actually existed during the period of the story, a stupendous outlay. Over one hundred genuine types were secured for the purpose of realism. They can be seen in the picture attired in their native costumes and pursuing their usual vocations. In fact every incident to the most minute detail has been given the most careful attention.

It is a dual role that Fairbanks is called upon to essay. As Don Diego Vega, the young man, he leads a secluded life. He exhibits a fondness for the companionship of books and quietness and amiable in disposition upon all occasions. Anything of an exciting nature was abhorrent to him and never was he found mingling with the populace in their various festivities. But when he became awakened to the oppression and persecution, without justification, of the natives by those in power, he felt that the time has already come to act. Disguised as Senor Zorro, we see him executing various exploits practically unaided in the attempt to free his people from the despot's yoke. He becomes transformed into a veritable dynamo of boundless energy. What a mass of new feats of skill he performs! There is a girl in the story that really furnishes the strong love interest.

With Noah Beery, Robert McKim, Charles Hill Mailes and Marguerite DeLaMotte, his leading lady, collected in his cast, Fairbanks has left nothing undone to assure the public the best obtainable in motion pictures.

MIND READER AND HYPNOTIST COMING

Something entirely different from the usual entertainment is the forthcoming visit of Mysteria, a mental marvel, who will answer all your questions. Mysteria received his training at the hands of Mem-O-Rea, England's greatest mind reader, who is now playing the Canadian cities.

Accompanying Mysteria is Medhata, well named Canada's Premier Hypnotist, who will present a study of the science of hypnotism or mental thought transmission, through the agency of a number of local young men and women. Medhata has studied this subject very deeply and gives some very wonderful demonstrations from the scientific side. One of his most interesting demonstrations is that of producing local anasthesia, whereby it is possible to do even major operations without the use of chloroform. This method is today being used at many of the leading continental hospitals in Europe. The funny side of life is also well taken care of by the professor and, from press comments we have seen from other towns, the remark on the billing, "100 Minutes of Laughter" is well founded. This attraction will appear here at the Empress Theatre for a period of two days commencing Wednesday, March 22nd. Also Douglas Fairbanks in "The Mark of Zorro."

"I CAN'T EXPLAIN NOW— YOU'LL HAVE TO TRUST ME"

Is that too much to ask of love? His heart told him she was true, but there was the damaging incident he had seen with his own eyes.

Could he take his heart's verdict, or should he believe his eyes and doubt her loyalty to him?

That is just one of the big, gripping situations in this tense drama of real folks in an everyday tragedy.

GHOSTS! UGH! B-R-R-H! IS DOROTHY GISH AFRAID- NO!

Star of "The Ghost in the Garret" Has an Interesting Spook Adventure

Talk about ghosts and spooks and haunted houses! Here's a real story! In Mamaroneck, N.Y.,—just "forty-five minutes from Broadway," there is a little house that stands back about two hundred feet from the old Boston Post Road. It is an ordinary house as houses go, but should you ask any of the neighbors about it they would instantly throw up their hands in horror and warn you, "Don't go near it; it's haunted!"

One day, Miss Dorothy Gish, who lives within a mile of the house, heard the rumors and made an investigation. She didn't want to confess it, but the house made her, as she put it, "rather uncomfortable." Miss Gish went to the house and discovered—not a ghost but her own property man.

"What in the world are you doing here?" she asked.

"I'm fixing up these confounded ghosts," he replied.

Further inquiry developed that the spooks in Mamaroneck were the ones her property department were arranging for her new Paramount picture, "The Ghost in the Garret," which will be seen at the Empress Theatre next Friday and Saturday. The support is excellent, William E. Park playing opposite the star.

BIG GISH COMEDY IS FILLED WITH LAUGHS

"The Ghost in the Garret" is a Delightful Vehicle for Popular Star

Thrills and laughter are happily combined in Dorothy Gish's latest Paramount comedy, "The Ghost in the Garret," which will be shown at the Empress Theatre for two days beginning Friday next. That this is one of the best comedies in which Miss Gish has been seen for many months all her admirers will agree after they have seen the picture.

Miss Gish, in the story, is a poor girl who goes to the home of her wealthy uncle and aunt, taking her dog and parrot with her. The dog puts a fashionable party to rout and from that moment the action is not permitted to drag for an instant. Then comes the theft of a valuable pearl necklace by a society crook who flees with his booty to a haunted house where his pals are in hiding. Going in pursuit of the thief to protect her sweetheart, she finally recovers the jewels after a series of thrilling and laughable developments.

Making Cups and Saucers

Everyone knows that pottery is made from clay, but many people will be surprised to learn of the other materials used.

Ordinary earthenware is made from Cornish china clay, ball clay from Devon or Dorset, flints obtained from the seashore in the neighborhood of Dieppe, in Northern France, and "china" or "Cornish" stone. The delicate and more expensive chinaware is made from china clay, stone, and ground calcined bone, most of which comes from South America.

The clays are churned up with water until a cream, or "slip" of the correct consistency is obtained. The other materials are made into slips by grinding with water, and then the correct quantities of each slip are thoroughly mixed together. The whole is then pumped into a filter press, where the clayey mixture is retained while the water flows away. This mixture, still referred to as "clay," is now ready for the making shops.

Let us watch the earthenware cups being made.

The first requirement is a mould, made of plaster of Paris, the inside of which is the exact shape of, and larger than a finished cup without a handle.

A piece of clay which has previously been evenly flattened out is placed in the mould, which is revolved while a tool is lowered inside to shape the clay to the side of the mould. When finished the mould is put into a drying room where moisture is withdrawn from the clay, which shrinks and easily comes out of the mould.

The handle is made separately in another mould, and when it is dry it is stuck on the cup by means of a little slip.

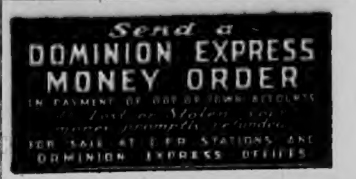

In another part of the room saucers are being made in a similar way. The top of the saucer mould is the shape of the inside of the saucer, and the tool which shapes the clay to the mould also raises the foot, or rim, on which the saucer stands.

Once they are dry our cups and saucers are ready to be baked, or "fired," as the potter calls it.

This is done in an oven like a huge ginger-beer bottle, which holds some tons of ware. To protect the ware from the flames it is placed inside large firebricks known as "saggers."

When the oven is full of saggers the door is sealed up and the firing begins. It occupies from sixty to seventy hours. The oven takes the same time to cool, but the ware which is withdrawn from it is quite dull, without any of the familiar shiny appearance.

In order to get this glazed surface the ware is dipped into another special slip, and when it is dry it is again fired. Should it have any decoration, such as gold bands, it has to be fired a third time. Some articles with beautiful coloured designs have to be

MARCH HARES.

This is the month (explains the lad) When hares and rabbits all go mad. I don't know why—but everywhere I read about the Mad March Hare. Perhaps he's mad because, some days The good old sun begins to blaze, And grass looks green, and robins sing And everything acts just like spring, For maybe half a day—and then It snows, and winter's here again. It makes me mad enough to swear, So you could hardly blame a hare Or any creature, for that matter, For getting madder than a Hatter. But I don't know (went on the lad) Just why a Hatter gets so mad, But anyhow, when March is done, And Easter comes and brings the sun, The Hatter quits his grouch-and that's Because folks all buy Easter hats— And then the Hare gets over his, And shakes his cold and rheumatism, Pricks up his ears, kicks out his legs, And lays a bunch of Easter eggs! Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Brown are spending a few days at their Northfork Ranch.

Mr. and Mrs. Verb returned to Claresholm on Wednesday morning.

Mr. McLean was a visitor with his sister, Mrs. G. Hutton, last Friday.

Mr. J. and W. Stone were visitors with friends in Macleod last week end.

Mrs. F. Stone and her daughter Kathleen are visitors at Blairmore.

Quite a number of the Spring Point young people attended the dance held at Mud Lake last Friday.

On Tuesday last a farewell party was held at the home of Mr. Ballentine for Mr. and Mrs. Verb.

Messrs. L. and R. Gelinas were business visitors at Spring Point last week.

The baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Dunbar has been very ill, but is now on the road to recovery and expects to be home soon.

Hubby Was Quite Peeved.

As a result of an incident that occurred at the Macabees' whist drive held in Nelson, B.C., recently, when Alderman Shaw appeared at the function and endeavored to take away his wife, Mrs. Shaw laid information before a police magistrate charging her husband with assault. The information alleges that Charles D. Shaw "did assault and beat the complainant, Alice Shaw." It is stated that the irate husband, on learning that his wife proposed to attend the Macabees function, forbade her to do so, or to contribute a cake to the festivities. Learning that a cake had already been sent to a friend's house, he called at the house, asked for and procured the cake, and then tramped on it and kicked it away. Meanwhile Mrs. Shaw went to the function, and when Shaw, who is a conductor on the C.P.R., returned to the house and found her absent, he also proceeded there. There is said to have been a real sensation when Shaw, as is alleged, entered into an altercation with his wife, tearing her dress, and accusing her of extravagance. Immediate interference on the part of those nearest resulted in the husband finding himself in the midst of a hostile circle of the fair sex. He presently expressed contrition and stated he had lost his head. Mrs. Shaw telephoned the police, and escorted by a policeman, went to a hotel where she secured a room for the night.

Poor Eyes In Children.

(By Brice Belden, M.D.)

About one-fourth of our school children have defective vision or eye-strain requiring correction. If these conditions do not receive the attention of an oculist the affected children cannot be expected to progress in their school work.

As a rule these defects can be readily corrected, and as they are so frequent and sometimes quite serious there can be no excuse for neglecting them.

While a considerable number of children suffer from near sightedness, the commonest cause of eye-strain is far-sightedness.

Cross-eye, or squint, is also quite common, and it is a condition which cannot be depended upon to correct itself with the passage of time. It should be taken seriously and properly dealt with, so that the affected children can read and see the blackboard and keep up with their classes.

Children with uncorrected eye defects are not likely to continue their studies after the age of fourteen, the community loses on its investment in education of the defective children far to get through all the grades, since it costs as much to keep them in lower grades for the period of their school lives as to graduate them. Not only does the State fail to get value received, but the scanty education required results in relatively unfit citizenship.

It is a fact that the correction of defects of vision enables most of the affected children to keep up with those of normal vision.

Golden Rule Has Place In Trade

Has Been Found To Be Good Business Policy Both For Buyer And Seller.

OBLIGATION NOT ONE-SIDED

Consumer Gains As Much By Being Fair With Merchant As Latter Does By Being Square And Honest.

(Copyright.)

Some cynical persons have remarked that the Golden Rule has no place in business. They have taken the position that instead of doing unto others as you would have them do unto you, the only safe and safe plan is to do others before they have a chance to do you.

Fortunately for business and for the world at large, however, these persons are few and far between. The great majority of people are honest.

It has been proven repeatedly that even in business it pays to practice the Golden Rule, just as it has been proven repeatedly that "honesty is the best policy." It not only makes a man feel better down in his heart when he employs the principle of the Golden Rule, but he finds that it is good business. This applies not only to the man who stands behind the counter and gives a full pound of sugar to the man who asks for a pound, but also to the man who stands on the other side of the counter and pays his money for that pound of sugar.

Does Consumer Do His Part?

The consumer expects the merchant to be honest and square and give him his money's worth for every penny that he spends with him, but how often does the customer stop and ask the question, "Am I being as fair and honest with the merchant as he is being with me?" The consumer not only expects the merchant to give him honest weight and full measure at the lowest possible price, but he expects a world of other things besides. Nine times out of ten he expects the merchant to give him credit, and nine times out of ten the merchant does it. Many times he expects the merchant to "carry" him for three or four months before he pays for what he buys, and as many times the merchant does it. He expects the merchant to pay for advertising space in the church program which he is getting up and the merchant does it. He expects the merchant to "kick in" most liberally when he is raising a fund for the benefit of the town band, and the merchant does it.

He expects the merchant to provide the bonus which is to be paid to obtain a new factory which will benefit the working man, the clerk and everybody else in the town, and the merchant does it. He expects the merchant to "come across with a donation to help the poor family which otherwise would become a charge upon the common funds of the community, and the merchant does it.

Another Side to Picture.

Now, look on the other side of the picture. Mr. Consumer decides that he needs a new suit of clothes, or Mrs. Consumer decides that she wants a new kitchen range, or some of the little Consumers express a desire for a train of cars or a bob-sled. Mr. Consumer picks up the big mail order catalogue which the mail-order has printed with his money or that of others like him, and he looks it over until he finds a picture that strikes his eye. It's a picture of a "nifty" looking suit of clothes. Of course, he can't feel the picture to see whether the cloth is as good as it looks; he can't look the mail order man in the eye and ask him whether he will guarantee it to wear for at least a month or six months; he can't tell the mail order man that he will drop in the first of the month and settle for it; he can't tell the mail order man that he would like to have a little of his business or a chance to do a little carpenter work or painting or plumbing for him, as long as he is buying his goods from him, for the mail order man has not got any business or any work to give him. But the picture is a pretty one, so Mr. Consumer digs out his hard-earned cash, goes down to the P. O., buys a money order and sends it to the mail order man.

After a week or ten days, or possibly two weeks, the suit arrives. It may be nothing like the picture. The cloth may be of poor quality. The chances are that it doesn't fit at all. But there is nothing for Mr. Consumer to do but put the suit on and wear it. He can't get his money back. He might send the suit back and the mail-order man might send him another in its place, but the chances are that it wouldn't fit any better than the first and Mr. Consumer would only be out the additional express charges.

Found Golden Rule Pays.

Mr. Consumer found that it pays to remember the Golden Rule in business. If he had done unto the merchant as he would like the merchant to do unto him, he would have got more for his money and he would have aided in making it possible for the merchant to help him and his town when they needed help.

The world has discovered that the Golden Rule is not for use only on Sundays, but that it is value on every day of the week.

That kind of musick, sed Pa. Not me, not me, sed Pa.

Pa is awful good, I hoap I can be that good wen I git growed up or else awful tuff, I don't want to be 1/2 way.

(Copyright.)

The Macleod concerns listed here, conscious of the fact that thousands of dollars are being sent out of this territory for merchandise that can be bought at home, have launched a campaign in the hope that it will create a stronger feeling of community interest—a sentiment most vital for the prosperity of the entire community. In bold type you therefore read the slogan that they propose to popularize—"TRADE IN YOUR HOME TOWN."

The time for consideration of this question could not be more opportune than the present. "Preparedness," the watchword of Canada, should begin at home and can be exemplified in no more far-reaching manner than by real co-operation—"TRADE AT HOME" movement. It is a thought that should be taken to heart and given consideration by every person who earns their living in, or owes their success to, this community.

This campaign is launched in the firm belief that the people of this community will follow the dictates of their good sense, and bring the "TRADE AT HOME CAMPAIGN" to an actuality that will be of vast benefit to the entire territory.

This movement is no selfish propaganda of these progressive concerns who have combined in co-operative community appeal. They urge that you read the brief message they will give you each week through the columns of The Times.

The firm resolve to "TRADE AT HOME" will not only help the retail merchants, but the manufacturer and jobber, the farmers adjacent to our town, and it will also help in every line of business. It will either directly or indirectly benefit every individual of this section.

HANDSHAKING MENACES THE HEALTH OF NOTABLES.

A story comes from Lucknow about a veteran warrior with whom the Prince of Wales shook hands on the occasion of a review, the Indian exclaiming, "He shook my hand. This hand. If only my father could have lived to have known his son's honor." For royalty to shake hands would seem to the natives of India an unparalleled honor, but the young Prince delights in making innovations wherever he goes, and we know that on his various voyages he has as freely offered his hand as any commoner. Nevertheless, he found that one might go too far with this democratic salutation and when he left this continent his right hand was almost out of commission as a result of the hearty and continual grips of his admirers. In a dissertation upon hand-shaking, Cunliffe Owen suggests that for his own protection President Harding and other public men, unduly exposed to hand-shaking, should wear gloves as is the custom with royal personages in the old world.

Irksome and Dangerous.

One New Year's Day it is said that Mr. Harding shook hands with perhaps 6,000 men, women and children, and smiled through it all, though the physical strain must have been great. Not only was this a very fatiguing business, but Mr. Owen thinks it was running a risk, and he says that the National American Institute of Homoeopaths has indicated some thirty or forty distinct diseases which may be communicated by a handshake. Indeed this body, feeling that in exposing himself to indiscriminate and perhaps insanitary handclaspings the President was risking his health, decided that when it waited upon him in a body, the members would simply bow. Later it was thought that this might seem rather an impudence as suggesting to President Harding how his guests should be greeted, and so the members all shook hands. So far as is known no harm came of it.

The King's Way.

Though lack of geniality was never a characteristic of the late King Edward, he did not freely offer his hand. When he did it was always gloved. A nod, sometimes accompanied by a brief smile, was considered sufficient greeting for those who attended his levees, both when he was Prince of Wales and King. When he extended his hand it was considered a mark of particular regard. Custom demands that those who grasp the hand of royalty shall remove their own glove for the purpose, but the fact that the King keeps his hand gloved for all prevents any exception being taken to royal etiquette in this regard. The glove serves to protect the sovereign from any of the numerous diseases which might be transmitted by the touch of human flesh, especially if the pores of the skin are open, and again, since the hand of one person is gloved the bare hand of the other can acquire no infection.

Hand Kissing.

Hand kissing remains in vogue. It is the custom of English Cabinet Ministers on receiving their seals of office, ambassadors and plenipotentiaries, high dignitaries of the Court and Church on their appointment to office, and Archbishops and Bishops of the Established Church when kneeling to do homage on their nomination, to kiss the hand of the sovereign. The kissing of the Pope's foot after death is an ancient observance, but for adequate reasons was omitted in the case of the late Pope Benedict. We admit that it is with some effort of the imagination that we see Lloyd George kissing the hand of King George, and suppose that for once he has done it he has shaken the royal hand fifty times. Nowadays the kiss is reserved for the most formal occasions and with the present royal families we presume the handshake is as common as with most other families in the realm.

The Queen and Gladstone.

It was not so with King Edward and still less in the days of Queen Victoria. The latter was extremely chary about permitting anyone to shake her hand. In Morley's "Life of Gladstone" he says that the Queen just once shook hands with him, although they were meeting each other for perhaps 50 years, whether he was leading the Government or the Opposition. Her Majesty was supposed not to be an admirer of the Grand Old Man, and it was only a few months before his death, after he had retired from public life and was searching for health in the South of France, that he called upon the Queen, who was there for the same purpose, and she shook hands with him. The incident so impressed Gladstone that he recorded it in a pathetic little letter. Perhaps it is unnecessary to add that the kiss bestowed upon the hand of a monarch does not partake of the nature of a grapple as revealed in the movies. The fingers are merely raised and touched by the lips.

FORM WOMEN'S PIONEER ASSOCIATION

There will be a meeting of the women pioneers of Southern Alberta, at the home of Lady Loughheed, Calgary, on Thursday, March 23rd, for the purpose of forming the "Women's Pioneer Association of Southern Alberta," one similar to the men's Old Timers' Association. All who have been in Alberta since 1890 are eligible to join and the territory covered will be from Red Deer to the International Boundary.

European brewers, it is said, are in fear of prohibition. Why, is it possible that they haven't heard the claim that prohibition doesn't prohibit?

Pancho Villa, having offered to take the field in defense of the Mexican government, one awaits with confidence the news that Lenine has joined the conspiracy to get the czar back on the throne.

Everyday Religion

FATHERS AND SONS.

Just at present there is a great deal of unemployment. Men are faced to face with the problem of how to provide for their families. There is another problem with which they are faced to face all the time. That is, how to train their families. And of course difficulty is supposed to be all with the training of the boys. Girls are not to be considered as presenting any peculiar difficulties. We are not sure about that, especially in this new age of female independence. But let that pass. We understand boys a little, and we'll stick to them.

The old method of training boys was for the father to rule the boys. The new method is for the boys to rule the father. Neither method is conspicuously successful. In old times when boys reached a certain age, many of them used to run away from home. Now when they reach the same age they are inclined to run the home. Both facts show serious defects in the methods of upbringing.

There is a time when strict discipline should be practiced, and boys taught to obey. That is from infancy to the adolescent period, about 14 years of age. Then a different method ought to be used. The boy will already have learned to obey. But it should not be pressed too far. He is beginning to feel his manhood, beginning to learn his strength; beginning to think for himself; beginning to have opinions on things which may not always agree with his father's opinions. He is inclined to be self-assertive, and is also very sensitive.

That is the time when a wise father changes his method. He takes the boy more and more into his confidence; talks over things with him; draws out what the boy is thinking about and wanting to do, and advises and guides the boy, without any suggestion of forcing, in his choice of an education or an occupation. Instead of ordering as a master, he discusses things as a friend. Instead of lecturing as a professor, he reasons with the boy and listens to his reasons. Instead of lecturing as a professor, he reasons with the boy and listens to his reasons.

There is only one way of successfully bringing up a boy. Chum with him. Show him that you remember how you felt when you were young, and that you have not lost your interest in the things you did when you were young. Don't find all your fun in smoking and playing cards with a lot of bald-heads. That will make you grow old before your time. Find some of it in playing with your boy as he wants to play. That will keep you young when others of your age are doting. Go with him where he wants to go whenever you can. Show him that you can still pitch a curve or hit a ball, snowshoe or slide, or skate, swim or shoot, wield a paddle or handle a sail, or do many another stunt you did when you were young. Do things like that in whatever line you can and you will have your boy telling the rest of his bunch, "Gee! but my dad can show you fellows a few tricks in sport yet."

Remember that boys are hero-worshippers. They always have some hero to set up on a pedestal and adore. It may be a soldier or sailor, a statesman or orator, a baseball player, hockeyist, speed-skater, ski-jumper or driver of a dog-team. But at one period of his life there is no person such a hero to a boy as his dad. "My dad says so," is the last word in any dispute. His dad knows everything, can do everything. It is great when a father can keep his boy at that hero-worshipping stage all the way through. It is not that he will always think that his dad can do everything. He will know that there are some things dad cannot do. But he will believe and know that dad is a good sort, and still has in him the heart of a boy, even with the head of a man. It is a great thing for a boy when he has a dad who is not too old and silly and dignified to go out and play with his boy.

Men, that's the sort of thing which will keep you young. Get out and play yourself a bit when the day's work is done. It may be that you have gathered a little too much around the waist to run bases as you used to do. But then you make up for it by strength of arm to wallop the ball all over the lot, regular Babe Ruth style. It may be that you have too much aldermanic proportions to do gymnastic stunts. But those same proportions will make you all the more buoyant in a life-belt.

Go out with your boy whenever you can. Let him know that there are very few of the things that he does which you have not done in your time not omitting the mischief. He will find out that you have studied all these things and passed examinations on them before he was born. It will increase his respect for you immensely.

Do not be forever telling him that nothing like that was done when you were young. Of course such things were done when you were young, and you did them too; yes, some things just as naughty as anything your boy has ever done. Perhaps you forget the mischief you used to get into. Perhaps you want to forget. Do not pretend to your boys that in your young days all the boys were paragons of virtue. They were just boys, and you were just as much a boy as any. Be honest and remember those days, and you will realize that your boy is just a boy too.

of the cans was found to be minus its label, and in order to ascertain the contents it was necessary to raise the lid of the tin. When the underside of the lid was exposed it was noticed that it contained a message of some sort scratched with some sharp implement and quite legible. The words deciphered were as follows:—"Miss Jeannie Davidson, care of E. D. Smith, Winona, Ontario. Looking for a husband. Any young man that has any serious ideas please answer." As none of the eligible young men in Reach & Co.'s store seem to be matrimonially inclined, The Times has been asked to print the appeal made to our young manhood. There are eligible bachelors aplenty in this neighborhood. If any of them seriously contemplate marriage here is the opportunity of their young lives. We hope to see this enterprising young lady a resident matron before many moon's have passed.

The Rhyming Optimist.

The Chap Who Knows It All.

(By Alice Michaelis.)

I'm certain you have met sometime the chap who knows it all; he flourishes in every clime, the fellow's not a thing in prose or rhyme the fellow can't recall. He talks about the fall of Rome, he knows a real antique; he's always perfectly at home in any musty, dusty tome by Hottentot or Greek. To hear this gentleman converse fills lesser minds with pain, each Simple Simon feels much worse with this chap spouting Sapphic verse and showing off his brain. He lades out so much advice it seems all cares should cease; if he would try in just a trice he'd surely fix up some device to bring this old world peace. He helps his friends in any plight, and Johnson, Smith and Brown rely on him to say what's right; but when his own cares heave in sight that's where our friend falls down. He wants to boss his little wife, but trembles at her look; he flees from all domestic strife; while ruling many another's life he dares not fire his cook. Yes, know-it-all is really weak, whatever he may do in scaling learning's topmost peak and quoting Singalese and Greek, he has his limits, too. For any man who boasts his brain and cries, "I know it all!" from such remarks might well refrain, because to make the case quite plain there's no such animal!

A Berlin dispatch says that a group of German officers has been selling military secrets to Japan. The interesting part of this is the suggestion that Germany has any military secrets worth money.

The Atlantic City beach censor announces that "any woman with a one-piece bathing suit will be arrested the minute she goes into the water." The girls are safe—they'll stay on the beach.

The allies are thinking of cutting down the allowance of former Emperor Charles from $100,000 to $60,000. The misery and suffering entailed by the great war are by no means ended yet.

It will be 100 years from last Washington's birthday (discovers a Detroit paper) before the date can again be written "2-22-22." But think of 300 years from now, when you can write it "2-22-2222."

A story comes that the Prince of Wales has fallen off his horse, but it may be just one of the fillers put across by Princess Mary's press agent.

CRIME.

We buried our love with tears,
And sad were the words we said
As we thought of the empty years
And the love that was lying dead.

We put it under the ground,
Knelt, and arose to part—
Each with a bleeding wound
Fresh in an aching heart.

With a wound that refused to heal,
And a heart that could not forget,
And a pain that we still can feel,
And tears that are falling yet.

And the crime of the empty years
There is never a priest can shrive—
Who bury their love with tears,
They bury their love alive!

Keeping One's Own Council.

"Never complain that your confidence has been betrayed. The fault is yours for pouring unsafe talk into a leaky mind. You do not blame a leaky pail for leaking. Blame yourself for not knowing it leaked."

This quotation from a modern magazine, is, I believe, just about right—as right as the ancient Talmudic admonition "Thy friend has a friend and thy friend's friend has a friend; be discreet."

Both, you see, put the responsibility on yourself. It's of no use cavilling at the weaknesses of your friends. A broken confidence begins with yourself and there's the place to prevent it.

One's friends may usually be classified something after this fashion: Those who, under sufficient pressure, will tell anything they know, justifying themselves, perhaps, by the excellent character of the person to whom they tell it; those who will reveal a confidence only to somebody who, they are convinced, never had known and never will know the people concerned; those who forget that they promised not to tell; those who tell everything but the names; those who once they have given a promise, will never tell; those who have sense enough not to tell, even though no promise be exacted, and last of all the one friend over whose tongue you can exercise absolute control—yourself. This doesn't take in, of course, the host of talkers of various sorts who aren't your friends at all.

The person of the first class, you may say, is not a true friend, but I don't think that is necessarily so. She is, very likely, deeply interested in the affairs of her friends, sympathetic, a tempting confidant and with every intention of keeping your secret. But, while it is fresh in her mind, along comes another friend—not yours, but hers—with a tale of woe or wonder almost equal to your own. Just to know how these sad and strange things do befall the best of people, your friend says: "Why there's Mrs. H., wait till I tell you the experience she had—its a dead secret, of course, and you mustn't tell a soul," and so forth. Your friend's friend, not being your friend, has no restraining sense of loyalty, so the next time your little secret illustrates a point in her conversation she uses it.

As for the second friend, she needs this advice: "Don't tell anybody anything because she doesn't know the people involved. She may meet them to-morrow."

The woman who forgets that she promised is a most exasperating person and taxes friendship to the utmost. She repeats your secret in your very ears and to the last person in the world to whom you would tell it. Remembrance brings contrition but a contrition soon forgotten, and if you give her a chance she'll do the same thing again.

The friend who tells everything she knows excepting names, may be a very harmful person—the more so that she is an interesting talker and always gets an audience. The audience listens open-mouthed and mortally supplies at least one or two of the missing names. By the time it has listened to one or two more of her own ilk and her own set it may have all the names in the cast and so the cat is out of the bag.

The woman whose secret-keeping stops with never telling what she has promised not to tell is a dependable person—but with a lack. You cannot, dare not, talk straight out to her because she isn't sensitive to what is a familiar outspoken expression of thought from friend to friend, and what is, on the contrary, an opinion that you might reveal to anybody. Since one cannot punctuate any real communion of spirit with, "Don't tell this," and "That's a secret," nor yet fully enjoy a companionship in which the need of such warnings is felt, even though not expressed, this dull and unimaginative friend must take a second place in your affections.

The friend with whom you may "think aloud" with no fear of misunderstanding and no remotest dream of having the wrong thing repeated, the friend who knows as well as you what is just talk, and for anybody, and what concerns your family, your friends or your own heart deeply and intimately, and is for her alone, is the friend of friends. I fancy there aren't more than one or two such friendships in a lifetime; I believe they cannot exist unless you are the same kind of friend in return, and I know that they cannot be too highly prized.

And to your friends one of these friends is you. Which one, I wonder, don't you?

MACLEOD METHODIST CHURCH

Sunday Services

Rev. G. D. Armstrong will preach at both services.

Morning subject: "Heralds of the Dawn." Evening subject: "The Judgment Seat of Christ." On Tuesday, March 21st a motion picture of the missionary activities of the church in Japan and China will be given in the church at 8:15 p.m. This will give an opportunity of seeing mission work in actual operation and none who are interested in the development of the Far East should fail to see these pictures.

TWO-IN-ONE GARMENT.

A new undergarment with bloomer and petticoat in one is on the market. The material is soft silk and the full ruffles at the sides give the correct foundation to the Winter dress worn over them.

My Secrets Of Charm

(By Marilyn Miller.)

That there is a true charm in perfume no woman can deny. Its fragrance brings to mind many happy hours, certain friendships, exquisite reminiscences. It is like music, in a sense. For how often do we hear a certain tune played, and instantly, there is recalled to mind a time, a place and perhaps a certain some one with whom we have associated that tune. So it is with perfume, and fortunate indeed is the woman who has been able to find the fragrance that suits her personality. That sweet scent may be associated with her when the days are long past.

Heliotope was the perfume of our grandmother's day. And few of us can open an old handkerchief or glove box and come upon the pungent lavender of a by-gone day without feeling the personality of some sweet old lady whom we loved.

Choosing a perfume to suit one's individuality is an art. And to-day, when a myriad scents confront one at the perfume shops here and abroad, it is a difficult task to find the right perfume for expression.

Did you ever meet a slender, dark-eyed brunette who spoiled your first illusion by using a light perfume like lily of the valley, sweet pea or rose? For this type of woman the sweet, pungent perfumes of the Orient were invented. They are not flower scents, but the combined oils and herbs of land and sea, compounded by skilled perfumers to give that elusive fragrance that lingers in one's memory for long days.

The dainty blonde type of girl should make her selection from those lighter scents such as rose, violet, orange blossom, carnation or orchid.

After you have selected the perfume for your personality, it should be the scent for all your toilet preparations. Satchel pads for the hangers on which your frocks hang in the wardrobe, your face powder and creams should hold the one scent.

A chemist whom I met in Paris a few years ago compounded for me the perfume he thought breathed of my own personality. It is a rare combination of flowers, not the heavy perfume of the Orient, but rather a light, soothing scent that has for its foundation a woodland violet. It is the perfume I keep with me always. I hope never to change this fragrant odor so that when I have retired from the stage in years to come I may always open my treasure chest and be reminded of the happy hours gone by. All my cosmetics have this fragrance for their basis, so that no confusion of perfumes may ensue.

Two perfumes should never be used at the same time. The chemistry that is worked out to give forth one scent is interrupted by the odor of the other perfume. And the delicacy intended gives way to a screaming, inharmonious fragrance.

Cheap perfume should never be used. It is better to invest in a very small quantity of good perfume than to purchase twice its amount in a cheaper grade. If you select a concentrated perfume it will be necessary to use only a very small amount. Now, in the shops, I notice small bottles with a glass stopper that extends to the bottom. When the stopper is withdrawn, the drop of perfume that clings to its bottom is just sufficient to give the dainty fragrance to kerchief or blouse.

Toilet water, in your favorite odor, is a good substitute for its more expensive partner, extract. But care should be taken in using it on the fur neckpiece or blouse as its watery quality is likely to spot. The best method of using toilet water as a perfume is to spray it from an atomizer. One squeeze of the atomizer bulb is enough for one using. Over-perfuming is a mark of vulgarity. And because of this tendency, a few years ago, all perfumes were taboo by the women of high social standing. The knowledge of how to use perfume correctly has been responsible for re-establishing the perfume custom of Queen Elizabeth's day. And perfume, if well chosen, and delicately used is one of the true secrets of charm.

Sports Hats In All Styles.

(By Rita Stuyvesant.)

To accompany the new sport sweaters and suits there are the smartest of hats; hats that are rolled off the face, or with brims that droop, or stiff tailored hats for the severe type.

A leghorn hat with a rolled brim and rather high crown comes in a variety of colors such as black, brown, navy, putty, chocolate, and natural tones. One wears this type of hat with a mannish coat sweater and sport skirt with a striped necktie, and completes it with a pleated skirt.

French felt makes a sweater hat that protects one from the Southern sun by its turned-down brim. A quill thrust off one side of the centre adds a desirable dash, and then one may have a choice of white, orchid, copeland, sand, beaver, black in selecting this attractive hat.

Ribbon and straw combine wonderfully well in another hat turned back abruptly from the face and marked at one side by loops of ribbon. The crown in this hat, too, is rather high and the straw is coarse with overlapping rows. To match one's sweater this hat is shown in copeland, white, orange, brown and black with facings of contrasting color.

A rolled sport hat of moire hemp straw that turns up all around is fashioned with a facing of mill ribbon, and is decidedly smart. It is offered in periwinkle, pumpkin, black or brown.

Contrasts In Meals.

By Loretto C. Lynch

When we see men and women of average height walking along the streets of a lively town or city, we never give them more than a passing glance. But when we see a very tall man and a very short woman, or vice versa, walking along, our interest is piqued. We may stop, we may just smile or we may even gaze, but the fact remains that our interest has been suddenly aroused.

Just as it is so in planning meals. We may put upon the table the choicest foods the market affords, but if there is a certain sameness to the foods and they fail to arouse our interest and pique our palates, we are not really getting the full value from them.

For, regardless of how much food value a food may have when we are planning a meal on paper, unless the combination of foods as they appear on the table are such as to stimulate the digestive juices because of their variety and contrast, both money and effort are wasted.

Suppose, for instance, you are serving boiled fish with most any desired sauce. Which would be better to serve with it, mashed potatoes or French fried?

The mashed potato would offer contrast neither of color nor consistency, and the combination would be flat. French fried potato straws would offer contrast of color and a certain crispness which would accentuate the whiteness, perhaps, and the softness of the fish. On the other hand, were you serving fish fried in deep fat, with a coating of egg and crumbs, the contrast would be more pronounced if you served creamy white mashed potato or creamed potato sprinkled with finely chopped parsley or spicy red paprika.

The woman who wishes so successfully plans her meals, should give some attention to colors in foods. Recently I attended a luncheon evidently planned by a novice or some other equally inexperienced person. The luncheon consisted of tomato soup, soft bread, stuffed fresh tomato—the stuffing was of beets combined with pimento and celery. Then there was a fruit gelatin—a red gelatin at that—and the only thing that saved the luncheon at all was a cup of really good coffee that we welcomed at the end.

The red of the beets clashed with the red of the hothouse tomato, while the red of the pimento came right up and KILLED both.

Soft bread should not have been served with the soup. Either a crusty roll, a thick slice of French bread or a few crackers would have offered more contrast.

In fact, where the main dish—the stuffed tomato—was both tomato and red, it would have been better to plan a soup having neither tomato nor the reddish color in its make-up. Cream of celery soup or chicken bouillon or a meat broth would have been better. It would have been better to stuff the tomato with chicken salad (if chicken broth was not served) or tuna or crab flake or just celery and mayonnaise.

And since most of the luncheon was "soft," a nice, crisp, flaky fruit tartlet would seem better than the soft red gelatin dessert.

Are you offering CONTRAST in your meals? A little thought in this direction will enable the housewife to use her foods to better advantage.

The news comes that Bulgaria has imposed compulsory work upon women; but the history of mankind reveals that there is nothing particularly new in that.

A New York man has been arrested on the charge of breaking into and robbing the same store 100 times. In New York you can go just so far and then somebody gets impatient.

FURS, FEATHERS AND FINS.

ALL ABOUT TREE-HOLES—WHITTEY, THE WEASEL.

"This is a bird-house, and I am going inside to catch a woodpecker chicken for dinner."

But Whitey had got only half-way through the doorway, when a pair of strong wings beat him on the back. A pair of sharp claws scratched, and a fierce beak prodded and pinched until he squeaked and squealed. He backed out of the hole and hurried down the tree, and all he said to Dick was:

"I know a better hole than that, any way."

The Chicken House. Whitey led the way over to a larger tree, from which stuck out a hollow, dead branch. After the weasel had climbed up and squeezed himself in the hollow, Dick waited, wondering what kept Whitey in the hole so long. Presently he saw the weasel come out of a hole higher up the tree, carrying something in one front paw.

"Chipmunk-house. When I got inside, all I found was this empty acorn-shell and something written on a leaf—here it is—"

This nest is like this acorn shell, and also Mr. Whitey Weasel's head—nothing in it.

The weasel was very angry, and stamped his feet, while Dick could not help laughing.

There's another hole in the next tree Whitey. Better luck this time," said Dick.

The House Hole. The weasel looked and listened, then carefully crawled into the tree-hole. Suddenly there was an astonishing amount of noise inside the tree, squeaks, and squeaks and scratchings. A moment more, and a terrified weasel clawed his way out of the hole and came down the tree and over toward Dick. Behind Whitey came a swarm of buzzing bumble-bees, who followed him to his burrow in the bank.

Dick hurried away from the spot, wondering if Whitey, the weasel, really knew very much about tree-holes.

Dick was out in Grand-pa Hollis' woods again the very next morning. He was on his way to the uprooted tree, near which Whitey the weasel had his home, and was wondering if Whitey would have any better luck than yesterday.

Dick knew that Whitey was out of doors this morning, because the meadow larks were all excitement, and there was not a field-mouse to be seen as he passed. Besides that, he had met someone just as he was climbing over the rail-fence into the wood.

This had been a dormouse—Old Doctor Dormouse who had told Dick he had called on the weasel. He told Whitey to take lots of fresh air, though there did not seem to be much the matter with his appetite.

"Weren't you afraid?" asked Dick, "that Whitey might take you as well as the fresh air?"

But old Doctor Dormouse only laughed as he replied: "There would be no one to make him well afterward, if he ate the doctor."

Dick reached the up-rooted tree, and found Whitey carefully sorting some small white bones all white and polished, in front of his doorway.

"Corporal Cameron," a new moving picture, the scene of which is laid in Macleod and neighborhood, has been released and will be shown here in the not very distant future. This play which possesses such a great deal of local color is bound to draw a big crowd, especially from among the ranks of the Blood Indians, many of whom were prominent characters in the scenes shot around Macleod last fall.

GENERAL REMARKS BY AUDITOR:

Accounts are in good order.

All expenditures are sufficiently vouched for and legally authorized.

The Current Tax Roll is now being purged of all dead assessments which are being transferred into a Separate Roll. When the Tax Sale lands are redeemed, sold or dedicated to the Town they will again become assessable to the new owners and transferred to Current Roll or exempted from assessment if they become Town property absolutely. It is assumed that the Reserve Fund may be sufficient to cover the cost of all properties falling into the Town's hands in this manner.

The Electric Light and Waterworks have made a good showing for the past year.

The Town Finances appear to be in a fair way for recovery if the Debenture holders and the Bank are lenient in granting the concessions asked for.

GEO. J. KINNAIRD, Auditor.

It is to be understood that the Supplementary Tax Roll above referred to is not to be treated as a mere office record, but will actually form part of the Town's annual assessment.

A mother's conversation with her son: "Pat, ye should have a trunk." "What for, mither?" "To put your clothes in, surely." "What! and go naked?" Now, unfortunately, this is the plight of others besides the boy. Many can't afford two suits of clothes, but have to wait for luck to replace the garments when absolutely necessary. A man is worse off than a woman, because when the pants fall apart, he stands virtually just as he was dressed in the Garden of Eden. Some wear underclothing till it is tattered and torn, or, in some cases, no underwear at all. A woman is not so badly off, as she can discard a dress, then have a skirt or petticoat. Even if these have to be thrown away, she has got others beneath to take their place. It is to prevent semi-nakedness among people with little money, that the spirit moves us to meet them in special cut prices. We no longer get the average profit, which a merchant in the happy, long ago, was entitled to, but meet a customer with profits blown to smithereens. People have got to have clothes, so it is up to us to see that you get them. Better times are coming, and we can then try and make a living profit on goods. Come and see what we have that you want or require. You will then see our promises are not empty boasts, or non-reliable advertising. We have some Men's Mackinaw Coats to offer at cost. All kinds of Underwear, Boots and Shoes. Gingham from 20 cents up. Prints, Galateas, Crepe Goods, at prices very little above cost.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL NEWS

A new telephone directory has recently been issued.

W. Whitworth left for Edmonton on Wednesday, where he will spend a few days' holiday.

The audited balance sheet of the Town of Macleod to December 31st, appears elsewhere in this issue.

H. Bright left on Monday for Calgary to attend a meeting of the Municipal Hall Board. Mrs. Bright accompanied him.

The extremely mild weather of the past two weeks brought to a close the activities of curlers and hockey-ists.

It is expected that the Alberta legislators will be through with their labors by the middle of next week, night sessions now being held with that end in view.

Estimates for the year tabled in the Legislature provide for a fund of $15,000 for use in colonization of irrigation projects under construction and to be constructed in the south.

Supt. W. C. Bryan, of the Alberta Provincial Police, was in town this week, on a visit of inspection. While here "Teddy" met up with many of his old friends who are always pleased to give him the glad hand.

Last Sunday's severe windstorm did some little damage to buildings and fences in town. The high wind continued nearly all day and was especially noticeable in the country, the earth being carried along in clouds.

A Taber farmer hooked up to his plough last Saturday but decided to quit owing to the muddy condition of the soil. With a continuance of the present fine weather not one but thousands of farmers will soon be at work on the land.

On Thursday of last week while the thermometers here registered 30 degrees above freezing, North Vanhandle, Texas, was experiencing one of the worst blizzards in its history. Three feet of snow fell and great loss to live stock is feared.

The Macleod branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society has done an enormous amount of relief work during the winter, and now finds their supply of clothing very small and requests for relief still coming in. Would any person who has any children's clothing, especially for girls, or anything that could be made over, and feel that they have no further use for it please leave it at the Red Cross Depot over the Great West Saddlery and the committee will be very grateful for any donations.

Mr. Jack Kemmis, of Cowley, was the guest of Mrs. Robt. Patterson for a few days this week.

Inspector Nickleson, of the Alberta Provincial Police, was in town this week on business connected with the court.

The new gas well struck near Many Islands bids fair to become one of the best yet tapped. The gas is a heavy petroleum and escapes under a very high pressure. It carries with it a very strong odor and appears to be from a different strata than the gas at Medicine Hat, which has no noticeable odor.

A C.P.R. brakeman named Harry Gilroy fell from a box car on Tuesday last while his train was at Peigan, dislocating a wrist, slightly injured one of his eyes and bruised himself rather seriously. He was removed to the hospital where he is receiving every attention and is getting along nicely.

The town was given over to strangers all week, many of whom were here on matters connected with the court, which was opened on the 13th, presided over by Judge Ives. The majority of jurymen ordered to attend the present sittings of the court came from the neighborhood of Claresholm and are a fine bunch of men.

Wm. Shields, M.L.A., while in town recently, attended a meeting of the Municipal District of Bright held in the office of H. Bright. The question of hay and feed oats was taken up and considerable discussion ensued. As a result of that meeting the much-needed relief will be granted to those in need of it. This will be the very best of news to those who had no feed and no prospect in sight for relief.

Much discomfort to householders has been caused of late owing to a scarcity of water in the homes due to the pipes leading from the main source of supply becoming frozen and bursting under the pressure. During the time repairs were being made, and which were diligently proceeded with, water was delivered in the old-fashioned way—a team and tank being requisitioned for that purpose.

Judging from the steady stream of inquiries regarding Southern Alberta lands arriving almost daily from the Board of Trade Secretary, Jas. S. Rose, of Lethbridge, there is an increasing interest throughout the United States in Southern Alberta agricultural development. Which is just what The Times has always maintained would be the case when people on the outside got wise to the fact that this section is coming under irrigation.

The engineers engaged on the line of the Lethbridge Northern Irrigation Project are beginning to gather here and will establish their summer camp in about a week's time, work commencing about the first of April. Their camp will be at the same place as last season, two miles west of town, located in a wooded bend of the river and not far from the water, an ideal camp ground in every respect. Several of the assistants employed last season have been re-engaged.

A Castor returned man was arrested and given a gaol sentence of ten days for wearing an army overcoat from which the military buttons had not been removed. Ex-service men consider the sentence unduly harsh, the victim being a married man with a family of several small children. It is claimed that a bootlegger, under certain circumstances, may be allowed to go free with a warning, but not so, apparently, in the case of one who is entitled to leniency by reason of his past services.

A number of stock inspectors are to be appointed for various parts of the west. It is the duty of these inspectors to examine all stock being sent out of the province, and their task at times is no light one. An energetic official, and one who is onto his job, can oftentimes save cattle owners from heavy losses, as it not infrequently happens that estrays find their way, either by accident or design, into shipments leaving the country. It is to prevent just such accidents that brand inspectors are appointed. It is quite likely a Macleod brand reader will be appointed to one of the positions about to be filled by the department of agriculture.

The present C.P.R. stock yard, it is claimed, is most inconveniently situated, being nearly three-quarters of a mile from the C.P.R. telegraph office, and shippers of stock have complained so much during recent years as to cause the town council during last summer to take up the matter with both the provincial and federal authorities seeking for a grant of land upon which to erect a new yard which would not have the disadvantages of the one now being used. The overthrow of both governments brought the correspondence to a close at that time, but the matter has not been forgotten. Mayor Fawcett, during the past week, having again taken up the question with the proper authorities, urging that the request of shippers of stock as presented by the Macleod Town Council be taken into consideration at as early a date as possible.

Here's a hint to those who look to have irrigation water on their farms in the near future. This system as practiced in Colorado will work every bit as well here. Anyway it shows how people once situated as we now are are making their land return them a good return for the labor and cash expended upon it. It reads as follows: "The average size of the irrigated farm in Colorado is 100 acres. The farmers find that this area is plenty under intensive cultivation. A man divides his 68 acres as follows: potatoes, 30 acres; beans, 10 acres; cabbage, 5 acres; barley, 10 acres; and the remainder, alfalfa. On his farm he keeps a bunch of hogs and dairy cattle, about 8 head of cows, a few sheep, chickens, and a bunch of steers that he would fatten and turn off. The homes on these farms are neat and comfortable and well kept. The settlers are very high class of people, which accounts for their prosperity. It might be added, as a class do they beat us, which is not possible. Then, if they can successfully do these things, there is no reason why we should fail along the same lines.

3. Court of Enquiry.—The detail of officers as mentioned below will assemble at a time and place to be named by the president for the purpose of enquiring into the cause of certain deficiencies in stores on charge to the 93rd Battery C.F.A., at Macleod, Alberta.

President: Capt. G. H. Scougall, 93rd Battery C.F.A., is appointed president. Members: Lieut. R. F. Barnes, 93rd Battery C.F.A.; Lieut. F. P. Walshe, 93rd Battery C.F.A.

GEO. H. SCOUGALL, Capt., for O.C. 93rd C.F.A.

Dial Sights for the guns have now arrived and gunlaying will be carried on with as often as possible. All ranks are warned to attend these parades as a shield has been put up for the 3 batteries of the 18th Brigade to be competed for and it is hoped that the 93rd Battery will carry that off with honors. This can only be done by the men attending parades and practicing their work. The shield will be put up for competition in camp this summer.

The canteen is now open and members can purchase many articles at a reasonable price.

A special parade will be held on Friday, March 10th, for the purpose of organizing a sports committee and as we have had the challenge from the R.C.M.P., it is "up to" the Battery to live up to its name.

Members of the R.C.M.P. are desirous of arranging a football match between a team of their own force and members of the 93rd on as early a date as possible. Any of the men who are interested are requested to leave their name with the Battery Sergeant-Major.

A meeting of the N.C.O.'s Mess is called on Wednesday, March 15th, all members are requested to attend as important business is to be discussed.

News comes by cable that a wave of religion is sweeping through the ranks of German Socialists. That's the biggest blow the party has ever had.
